

Thomas, Ella Gertrude Clanton. The Secret Eye: The Journal of Ella Gertrude Clanton Thomas, 1848-1889. Edited by Virginia Ingraham Burr. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 1990. HC-Done

Secession and coercion, 184
Women making sacrifices like revolutionary mothers, 185
Western Virginia campaign, 187
Blockade and shortage of books, 188-89
Husbands leave home for Richmond Hussars, 189-92
Death of slave child, slave praying and eloquences, 193-94
Inflation, food prices, 194
Rumors that Yankees with use black troops, 195-96
Debate in Presbyterian church on founding a better university, 197-98
Women's education, 198
Benjamin Morgan Palmer sermon, 198
Distinction of southerners from Yankees, 200
Poor ungrateful for help, 203-4
Poor conditions in hospital, 204
Butler's woman order, 206-7
Children and Yankees, 207-8
Toll of the war, 208
Southern intellectual development, 211
Food prices, 214
Thoughts of dead at end of 1862, 214
Slave funeral service, 215-17.
Charleston Mercury, condition of paper, prices, 217
John Hunt Morgan, 221-22
Death of her father, 222-25, 231-33
Augusta slaves being conscripted to work on fortifications, 226
Yankee prisoners described, 227-28
Third Georgia hospital, 229
Description of death soldier and thoughts on his death and family, 229-30
Armistice talk, 233
McClellan nomination, 234
Slavery, doubts, 236
Thoughts that she might have to work for her own support some day, 237
Jefferson Davis speech, 237
Sherman, people in Georgia, whipped, morale, 237-38
Doubts about slavery, 238-39
Methodist church, sermon, seeking money, 240-42
Jefferson Davis, black troops, Confederate weakness, 243
Ignoble human nature, Sherman, 244
Hood in Tennessee, 244
Yankees visit their plantations, some slaves faithful, some not, 246-47
Christmas, Episcopal church, 250
Refugee women, Christmas, 251-52

Women, Yankees, miscegenation, 252-53
Stragglers, Confederate pillaging, 252
William T. Sherman, wife, miscegenation, 253-54
Burning cotton, demoralization of the people, mob rule, 256
Effects of war on her, 257