

Fessenden, Francis. Life and Public Services of William Pitt Fessenden. 2 vols. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin and Company, 1907.

Volume I—much detail on wartime finance throughout

Tax bill, 190-92

Ill and exhausted, 191

Letter to son entering army, money, 196-97

Alcohol, whiskey, son, 198

Chase, Stanton, 230-31

Republican caucus and attempt to get rid of Seward, quotes various senators, Lincoln, Chase, 231-52

Fredericksburg and Lincoln, 253

Assessment of Congress, March 1863, 254

David Hunter and black soldiers, 255-56

Fessenden favors using black soldiers, 257-58

George Bancroft on black soldiers, 258

Lincoln arrives in Washington, 259

Abraham Lincoln lacks will of his wife Mary, 259-60

Have to get rid of McClellan, unfit, 260-61

Wooden guns at Centreville, 261

Lincoln and Halleck, 261

Peninsula campaign, McClellan, Yorktown and Williamsburg, 262-63

Feared that Army of the Potomac would have to surrender, McClellan, Porter, Seven Days, McClellan, Seward, 263-64

Suffering of soldiers, winter campaign, Lincoln, 264

Cabinet crisis, 264-65

Fredericksburg, Mud March, Burnside, Hooker, 265

Soldiers pay in arrears, incompetence in government, 265-66

Morale, army, Lincoln, 266

Lincoln amnesty proclamation, 266-67

Criticizing government, Stanton miffed, 267

1863 Maine election campaign, 269

Fessenden and the Library of Congress, 271

Voted against second confiscation act, 274-75

New of his son's wounding, William H. Emory, William B. Franklin, 287-91

Speech on legal tender bill, 295-303

Defense of State Department arrests, 303-312

Treasury Department, 313ff

Declines nomination as Secretary of the Treasury, 319-22

Senator Grimes, Chase's agents, 322

Then agreed to appointment with assurances from Lincoln, 324-26

Condition of the Treasury, 328ff

Cabinet and Lincoln, 341

Grant, 343

John Sherman, whiskey tax, 356-57

Resigns to become a senator, 366

Review of treasury operations, 368-74

Volume II

Candidate for reelection as senator, 2ff

Compensation and amnesty to be offered Confederates, 8