

Pond, Cornelia Jones. Recollections of a Southern Daughter: A Memoir by Cornelia Jones Pond of Liberty County. Edited by Lucinda H. MacKethan. Athens: University of Georgia Press, 1998.

Plantation childhood, 3-18
Southern Belle, 19-38
Homemaking in the Old South, 39-58
Daughter of the Confederacy, 59ff
Election of 1860, secession, 59-60
Episcopal Church, Stephen Elliott, 60
Fort Sumter, 60
Husbands enlists and then resigns, 60-61
Scarlet fever in Savannah, 61
Husband joined Chatham artillery, 62
Palmetto hats, 64-65
Pleasant winter of 1863-64, husband could come home, Christmas, 69-70
Regiment sent to Virginia, 70
Transferred to 10th Georgia, 71
Fear of Sherman in winter of 1864-65, 71
Yankees arrive, 72
Ask for alcohol, 72
Robbed the house, 73
Looking for food, 73
Soldiers took corn for three weeks, 74
Soldiers search the house, 74ff
Threats to burn the house, 76
Forced slave to cook for them, 76
Christmas, 77-78
Burying valuables, slave, faithful slaves, 80-82
Overseer took some items from a neighbor, 83
Husband returns home, 83-84
Lee surrender, 84-85
Soldiers ransacking mothers' clothes, 85-86
Began to fear former slaves, 87-88
Lincoln assassination, 88