

Bradbury, Robert. “So Much to Say”: The Civil War Letters of Corporal Robert Bradbury, Battery D, First Pennsylvania Light Artillery. Edited by Jonathan A. Noyalas and Charles H. Givens. Winchester, Va.: Shenandoah University’s McCormick Civil War Institute, 2020.

Enlistment and duty, justification to sister, 19, 21-22
Volunteers in Washington, 25
Fortress Monroe, 26
Maryland campaign, 28
Stuart’s cavalry, Chambersburg raid, 30
Morale, Union side bound to prevail, 35
Soldier pay, 36
Thanksgiving, 36
Battery reorganization and consolidation, Hooker, 37-39
Box, 39-40
Anticipating spring campaign, 42
Discouraged about Confederate successes, Fredericksburg and elsewhere, 42-43
Chancellorsville campaign, 44-47
Heat, little to do, nothing to read, 47
Eager to fight the Confederates again, Hooker, 48
Harpers Ferry, 50ff
Unionism in Baltimore, food and drink for the soldiers, 50-51
Monocacy Junction, 1863, 51
Death at home, 54
Demand for books in the army, 58
Winter quarters, pontoon bridges, 61
Christmas, 62
McClellan as a presidential candidate, 62
Possible Confederate raid on B&O railroad, 65-66
Mice, 66
Camp newspaper, 67
Need for books, 69
Expecting a Confederate raid, 70
Box, 71
Boots, 71
Wants news of the high school commencement, 72
Enlistments expiring, officers, reenlistment, 73-74
Dusty roads, 74
Boots, 74
Confederate drives in cavalry, Early’s Confederates, 76-80
1864 Valley campaign, Berryville, 81
Atlanta, Mobile, Richmond, 83-84
Cedar Creek, 85-88
Winter camp, 89-90
Jubal Early and Sheridan, 90
Stables and winter quarters, 91-92
Sherman and Savannah, 92

Sewing kit, housewife, 93
Baby's name, 93-94
Daily routine, 95-96
Lincoln funeral, 97-98
Sherman and Johnston, postwar settlement, 98-99
Christian Commission library, 99
Harpers Ferry, postwar, 100ff
Capture of Jefferson Davis, 101-2
Kirby Smith surrender, 103
Poetry, 108ff
Cedar Creek, 109-11
Soldier's dream, 111-13