

Schofield, John M. Forty-Six Years in the Army. New York: Century Co., 1897.

Chapter I. Parentage and Early Life — Appointment to West Point — Virginian Room-Mates — Acquaintance with General Winfield Scott — Character of the West Point Training — Importance of Learning how to Obey — A Trip to New York on a Wager — The West Point Bible-class — Dismissed from the Academy Without Trial — Intercession of Stephen A. Douglas — Restoration to Cadet Duty — James B. McPherson — John B. Hood — Robert E. Lee 1

Chapter II. On Graduating Leave — Brevet Second Lieutenant in the 2d Artillery at Port Moultrie — An Officer's Credit Before the War — Second Lieutenant in the 1st Artillery — Journey to Port Capron, Florida — A Reservation as to Whisky — A Trip to Charleston and a Troublesome Moneybag — An "Affair of Honor" — A Few Law-books — An Extemporized "Map and Itinerary" — Yellow Fever — At A. P. Hill's Home in Virginia — Assigned to Duty in the Department of Philosophy at West Point — Interest in Astronomy — Marriage — A Hint from Jefferson Davis — Leave of Absence — Professor of Physics in Washington

University 16

Chapter III. Return to Duty — General Harney's Attitude — Nathaniel Lyon in Command — Defense of the St. Louis Arsenal — Service as Mustering Officer — Major of the First Missouri — Surrender of Camp Jackson — Adjutant-general on Lyon's Staff — A Missing Letter from Fremont to Lyon — Lyon's Reply — Battle of Wilson's Creek — Death of Lyon — A Question of Command During the Retreat — Origin of the Opposition of the Blairs to Fremont — Affair at Fredericktown. . . .32

Chapter IV. Halleck Relieves Fremont of the Command in Missouri — A Special State Militia — Brigadier-General of the Missouri Militia — A Hostile Committee Sent to Washington — The Missouri Quarrel of 1862 — In Command of the "Army of the Frontier" — Absent Through Illness — Battle of Prairie Grove — Compelled to be Inactive — Transferred to Tennessee — In Command of Thomas's Old Division of the Fourteenth Corps — Reappointed Major-General — A Hibernian "Striker." 54

Chapter V. In Command of the Department of the Missouri — Troops Sent to General Grant — Satisfaction of the President — Conditions on which Governor Gamble would Continue in Office — Anti-Slavery Views — Lincoln on Emancipation in Missouri — Trouble Following the Lawrence Massacre — A Visit to Kansas, and the Party Quarrel There — Mutiny in the State Militia — Repressive Measures — A Revolutionary Plot. . . .68

Chapter VI. A Memorandum for Mr. Lincoln — The President's Instructions — His Reply to the Radical Delegation — The Matter of Colored Enlistments — Modification of the Order Respecting Elections Refused — A Letter to the President on the Condition of Missouri — Former Confederates in Union Militia Regiments — Summoned to Washington by Mr. Lincoln — Offered the Command of the Army of the Ohio — Anecdote of General Grant 89

Chapter VII. Condition of the Troops at Knoxville — Effect of the Promotion of Grant and Sherman — Letter to Senator Henderson — A Visit from General Sherman — United with his other Armies for the Atlanta Campaign — Comments on Sherman's "Memoirs" — Faulty Organization of Sherman's Army — McPherson's Task at Resaca — McPherson's Character — Example of the Working of a Faulty System 113

Chapter VIII. Sherman's Displeasure with Hooker GROWING OUT OF THE AFFAIR AT KOLB'S FARM — Hooker's Despatch Evidently Misinterpreted — A Conversation with James B. McPherson over the Question of Relative Rank — Encouraging John B.

Hood to become a Soldier — Visit to the Camp of Frank P. Blair, Jr. — Anecdote of Sherman and Hooker under Fire — The Assault on Kennesaw — Tendency of Veteran Troops — The Death of McPherson before Atlanta — Sherman's Error in a Question of Relative Rank 132
Chapter IX. The Final Blow at Atlanta — Johnston's Untried Plan of Resistance — Hood's Faulty Move — Holding the Pivot of the Position — Anecdotes of the Men in the Ranks — Deferring to General Stanley in a Question of Relative Rank — The Failure at Jonesboro' — The Capture of Atlanta — Absent from the Army — Hood's Operations in Sherman's Rear — Sent Back to Thomas's Aid — Faulty Instructions to Oppose Hood at Pulaski — At Columbia — Reason of the Delay in Exchanging Messages 152

Chapter X. Hood Forces the Crossing of Duck River — Importance of Gaining Time for Thomas to Concentrate Reinforcements at Nashville — The Affair at Spring Hill — Incidents of the Night Retreat — Thomas's Reply to the Request that a Bridge be Laid over the Harpeth — The Necessity of Standing Ground at Franklin — Hood's Formidable Attack — Serious Error of Two Brigades of the Rear-Guard — Brilliant Services of the Reserve — Yellow Fever Averted — Hood's Assaults Repulsed — Johnston's Criticism of Hood — The Advantage of Continuing the Retreat to Nashville . 170

Chapter XI. The Correspondence with General Thomas previous to the Battle of Franklin — The Untenable Position at Pulaski — Available Troops which were not Sent to the Front — Correspondence with General Thomas — Instructions Usually Received too Late — Advantage of Delaying the Retreat from Duck River — No Serious Danger at Spring Hill — General Thomas Hoping that Hood might be Delayed for Three Days at Franklin 189

Chapter XII. After the Battle of Franklin — The Arrival at Nashville — General Thomas's Greeting — A Refreshing Sleep — Services of the Cavalry Corps and the Fourth Army Corps — Hood's Mistake after Crossing Duck River — An Incident of the Atlanta Campaign Bearing on Hood's Character — An Embarrassing Method of Transmitting Messages in Cipher — The Aggressive Policy of the South 226

Chapter XIII. Grant Orders Thomas to Attack Hood or Relinquish the Command — Thomas's Corps Commanders Support Him in Delay — Grant's Intentions in Sending Logan to Relieve Thomas — Change of Plan before the Battle of Nashville — The Fighting of December 15 — Expectation that Hood would Retreat — Delay in Renewing the Attack on the 16th — Hopelessness of Hood's Position — Letters to Grant and Sherman — Transferred to the East — Financial Burden of the War — Thomas's Attitude toward the War 236

Chapter XIV. Hood's Motive in Attempting the Impossible at Nashville — Diversity of Opinions Concerning that Battle — No Orders on Record for the Battle of December 16 — That Battle due to the Spontaneous Action of Subordinate Commanders — Statements in the Reports of the Corps Commanders — Explanation of the Absence of Orders—The Phraseology of General Thomas's Report 258

Chapter XV. General Thomas's Indorsement on the Report of the Battle of Franklin — Courtesies to Him in Washington — Peculiarities of the Official Records in Regard to Franklin and Nashville — Documents Which Have Disappeared from the Records — Inconsistencies in General Thomas's Report — False Representations Made to Him — Their Falsity Confirmed by General Grant . . 276

Chapter XVI. Sherman's "March to the Sea" — The Military Theory On Which It Was Based — Did It Involve War or Statesmanship? — The Correspondence Between Grant and Sherman, and Sherman and Thomas — The Effect of Jefferson Davis's Speech on Sherman — Rawlins's Reported Opposition to the March, and Grant's Final Judgment On It . 299

Chapter XVII. Sherman's Purpose in Marching to the Sea — His Expectations that the Change of Base Would Be " Statesmanship," If Not " War " — The Thousand-Mile March of Hood's Men to Surrender to Sherman — The Credit Given by Grant to Sherman — "Master of the Situation" — The Fame of Sherman's Grand Marches — His Great Ability as a Strategist 329

Chapter XVIII. Transfer of the Twenty-Third Corps to North Carolina — Sherman's Plan of Marching to the Rear of Lee — The Surrender of J. E. Johnston's Army — Authorship of the Approved Terms of Surrender — Political Reconstruction — Sherman's Genius — Contrast Between Grant and Sherman — Halleck's Characteristics — His Attempt to Supplant Grant — Personal Feeling in Battle — The Scars of War. 345

Chapter XIX. The Restoration of Civil Government in the Southern States — The Course Pursued in North Carolina — An Order from General Grant in Regard to Cotton and Produce — Suggestions for the Reorganization of Civil Government — A Provisional Governor for North Carolina . . 367

Chapter XX. French Intervention in Mexico — A Plan to Compel the Withdrawal of the French Army — Grant's Letter of Instructions to General Sheridan — Secretary Seward Advocates Moral Suasion — A Mission to Paris With That End in View — Speechmaking at the American Thanksgiving Dinner — Napoleon's Method of Retreating with Dignity — A Presentation to the Emperor and Empress 378

Chapter XXI. Reconstruction in Virginia — The State Legislature Advised to Adopt the Fourteenth Amendment — Congressional Reconstruction as a Result of the Refusal — The Manner in Which the Acts of Congress Were Executed — No Resort to Trial by Military Commission — The Obnoxious Constitution Framed by the State Convention — How Its Worse Feature Was Nullified — Appointed Secretary of War 394:

Chapter XXII. Differences Between the Commanding General of the Army and the War Department — General Grant's Special Powers — His Appointment as Secretary of War ad interim — The Impeachment of President Johnson — Memorandum of Interviews with William M. Evarts and General Grant in Regard to the Secretaryship of War — Failure of the Impeachment Trial — Harmony in the War Department — A New Policy at Army Headquarters 406

Chapter XXIII. Assignment to the Department of the Missouri — A Cordial Reception from Former Opponents in St. Louis — Origin of the Military School at Fort Riley — Funeral of General George H. Thomas — Death of General George G. Meade — Assigned to the Division of the Pacific — A Visit to Hawaii — Military Men in the Exercise of Political Power — Trouble with the Modoc Indians — The Canby Massacre 424

Chapter XXIV. Superintendent at West Point — General Sherman's Ulterior Reasons for the Appointment — Origin of the "Department of West Point" — Case of the Colored Cadet Whittaker — A Proposed Removal for Political Effect — General Terry's Friendly Attitude — A Muddle of New Commands — Waiting Orders, and a Visit to Europe — Again in Command in the West — The Establishment of Fort Sheridan at Chicago . . . 439

Chapter XXV. The Death of General Hancock — Assigned to the Division of the Atlantic — Measures for Improving the Sea-Coast Defense — General Fitz-John Porter's Restoration to the Army— President of the Board Appointed to Review the Action of the Court Martial — General

Grant's Opinion — Senator Logan's Explanation of His Hostile Attitude Toward General Porter 456

Chapter XXVI. The Death of General Sheridan — His Successor in Command of the Army — Deplorable Condition of the War Department at the Time — A Better Understanding Between the Department and the Army Commander — General Sheridan's Humiliating Experience — The Granting of Medals — The Secretary's Call-Bell — The Relations of Secretary and General — Views Submitted to President Cleveland — The Law Fixing Retirement for Age — An Anecdote of General Grant 467

Chapter XXVII. President of the New Board of Ordnance and Fortification — Usefulness of the Board — Troubles with the Sioux Indians in 1890-1891 — Success of the Plan to Employ Indians as Soldiers — Marriage to Miss Kilbourne — The Difficulty With Chile in 1892 484
Chapter XXVIII. Services of the Army During the Labor Strikes of 1894 — Military Control of the Pacific Railways — United States Troops in the City of Chicago — Orders Sent to General Miles, and his Reports — The Proclamation of the President — Instructions to Govern the Troops in Dealing with a Mob — The Duties of the Military Misunderstood — Orders of the President in Regard to the Pacific Railways 491

Chapter XXIX. Lessons of the Civil War — Weakness of the Military Policy at the Outbreak of the Rebellion — A Poor Use of the Educated Soldiers of the Army — Military Wisdom Shown by the Confederate Authorities — Territorial Strategy — General Military Education Indispensable to Good Citizenship — Organization of the National Guard — General Grant Without Military Books — Measures Necessary to the National Defense 513

Chapter XXX. The Financial Lesson of the Civil War — Approaching Bankruptcy of the Government near the close of the war — the legal-tender Notes an Injury to the Public Credit — A Vicious Clause in the Constitution — No Prejudice in the Army Against Officers Not Educated at West Point — The Need of a Law Reforming the Relations Between the President and the Commander of the Army — Devotion to the Chosen Leader in Times of Public Peril 529

Chapter XXXI. General Sherman's Friendship — His Death — General Grant's Recognition of Services — His Great Trait, Moral and Intellectual Honesty — His Confidence in Himself — Grant, Like Lincoln, a Typical American — On the Retired List of the Army — Conclusion 541
Index 549