

Daniel, Frederick S. The Richmond Examiner during the Civil War; or, The Writings of John M. Daniel. New York: Printed for the Author, 1868.

Lincoln inauguration, Buchanan, 5-7
Mythological story about selection of Lincoln, 7-13
War, 13
Virginia and secession, 13-14
Jefferson Davis and defense of Richmond, need for a dictator, 14-15
European opinion and the war, 15-16
Big Bethel, 16
Yankees and lack of courage, 16-17
Slavery and white pride, 17-18
First Manassas, 18
Raising Confederate armies, 18-19
No reliance of European recognition, 19-20
Sectional not a civil war, Yankee hatred for southerners, 20-21
Yankee are toadies to Europe, 21-22
War have destroyed party lines, 22-23
Call for vigorous, aggressive war policy, 23-24
Needs cooperation of every state in this war, other states should not disparage Virginia's reluctance to secede, 25-27
Criticizes Letcher and defends Virginians, 27-30
Preparing for next campaign season, need for more troops, 30-32
Criticism of defensive strategy, 32-34
Illusions of peace and a defensive strategy, 34-35
Red tape, bureaucracy, and a free press, 35-37
War needs to be conducted by ardent supporters, banish strangers, 37-39
Confederate reverses should inspire determination, cowardice, Fort Donelson, 39-41
Jefferson Davis inaugural address, 41-43
Need prompt and strong orders from Davis, 43
War Department, commanding general, need for brains, 44
Davis and cabinet changes, 44-45
National symbols and flags, 45-47
King Cotton, Yancey, 47-48
Shiloh, Beauregard, 48-49
McClellan, Peninsula, 49-50
Adjournment of Congress and possible loss of Richmond, 50-51
Fall of New Orleans, 51
Federal confiscation, debt, 51-52
All critical of government's conduct, 52-53
Virginia and defense of Richmond, 53
Jefferson Davis, fasting, humiliation, and prayer, 53-54
Butler's woman order, 54-55
Stonewall Jackson, retreats, 55-56
Yankees conduct of war, retaliation, 56-57
Second Manassas, John Pope, 57

States' rights, 58
 No need to negotiate, armies invading the North, 59-60
 Antietam, 60
 Lincoln and Emancipation Proclamation, 60-61
 War and revolution, southern mediocrity in military, 61-62
 Lee and Fredericksburg, 62-63
 Assessment of 1862, 63-64
 Northern Democrats, 64-65
 Vilifying Yankees, Davis, Letcher, Butler, 65-68
 Republicans and liberty, suspension of habeas corpus, 68-69
 Davis sticks with favorites like Lee, Lincoln does not, Scott, McDowell, McClellan, Pope, Burnside, Hooker, 69-72
 Yankees and black soldiers, 72-74
 Superior moral force in Confederacy, 74-75
 Impressment, tobacco, agricultural restrictions, arbitrary government, 75-76
 Confidence in Confederacy, adequate food supply, 76-77
 Not much talent in Confederate Congress, 77-78
 Hooker indicative of Yankee character, 78-82
 Army of the Potomac and Hooker, 82-83
 Death of Stonewall Jackson, 83
 Stuart, Hampton, Chambersburg, Stoneman, 83-84
 Navy, aggressive war, 85
 North not waging war to preserve national life, 85-86
 Army of the Potomac, results of Chancellorsville, 86-87
 Horses, 87-88
 Lee, Pennsylvania, Gettysburg, 88, 89-90
 Naval defeat, 88-89
 Loss of Vicksburg, 90-91
 Critics of Joseph Johnston, Vicksburg, 91-93
 Lee order against pillaging, retaliation, 93-95
 Need for retaliation against Yankee barbarity, 95-96
 Much exaggeration of losses at Gettysburg on both sides, 96-97
 Should not exaggerate Confederate problems, 98-99
 Lee campaign in Pennsylvania, 99-100
 Lack of will in Confederates, cotton, 100-1
 English and French opinion and the war, 101-3
 Judah Benjamin, Abraham Lincoln, north has prosecuted war more vigorously, cannot negotiate with Yankees, 103-6
 Can expect nothing from England and France, 106-7
 Corinth, Davis, Van Dorn, Vicksburg, Pemberton, Bragg, 107-9
 Confederate army has best and worst, absent, skulking, stragglers, 109-111
 Special session of legislature, Virginia defense, 111-12
 Fasting, humiliation, and prayer and Thanksgiving, Puritanical, 112-14
 Reconstruction of the Union, 114-16
 Diatribe against Lincoln, 116-17
 Napoleon III, French in Mexico, 117-18

Seward and English abolitionists, 118-19
 Two cultures, Yankee vulgarity, 119-20
 Confederate should be recognized as belligerents, Yankees glory south has won in the war, 121-22
 Northern government and the Russians, 122-23
 Sabine Pass, 124-25
 Criticism of patriots in present war, Washington, 125-27
 Irish troops Sabine Pass, 127-28
 Black barber from Richmond in New York, 128-31
 Meade and Lee, 131-33
 Northern and southern character, 133-35
 Each side underestimated the other, 135-36
 Confederate bonds, money, demoralization, 136-37
 Seward, 137-39
 Yankees are oblivious to the morale obloquy of the world, 139-41
 Supplying prisoners, prisoner exchange, 142-43
 Bragg and Chattanooga, 143-44
 Ignorance of Europeans, attention to the Confederacy, 144-46
 Grant, Bragg, Ringgold, Jefferson Davis, 146-48
 Confederates will not abandon the southern states, 148-50
 Bad selection of Confederate, officials Davis and cabinet, 150-52
 Jefferson Davis message to Congress, 152-54
 Supports proposal to limit cabinet members to two-year terms, 154-55
 1863—end of gloomy year, no great victories, financial chaos, sin, blames administration officials, 155-57
 Need for wise legislation in Congress and public patriotism, 157-58
 Departure of John Letcher, Extra Billy Smith, 158-59
 Military men favoring giving up liberty, 160-61
 Confederate bravery, but not good military organization, 161-62
 Northerners deluded about south already being conquered, 162-63
 North obsessed with idea of reconstruction, 163-64
 Press needs to criticize government, 164-66
 Gambling, 166-68
 Governor alcohol contract in Georgia, 168-71
 Confederate money, Memminger, finance, 171-72
 Poor quality of men in Congress, 172-74
 Improvements in military and financial legislation despite problems of the Davis administration, Bragg, 174-76
 Criticizes mild administration of the war, favors execution of Yankee raiders, 176-78
 Dahlgren raid, John Brown, 178-79
 Notes different attitudes those southerners directly affected by Yankee atrocities and those untouched, 179-80
 Butler, prisoner exchange, 180-82
 Grant and coming campaign against Richmond, Yankee admire success more than merit, 183-84
 Prisoner exchange, Butler and Ould, 184-86
 Confederate cause and blacks, 186

Washington, Scott and Grant as Lieutenant Generals, lucky at Vicksburg, 187-88
Jefferson Davis message, prisoner exchange, Yankee barbarism, European powers, 188-90
Need for Congress to get to work, 190-91
Beginning of Overland campaign, 191
Grant and uncertainty of the campaign, 192
Northern newspaper brag, will welcome retreat of Lee, Lee is in a stronger defensive position, 193-94
Confederate inflation makes Yankees confident, cannot conquer a people who submit to privations, 194-96
Yankee confidence, Stanton, quiet confidence among Confederates, 196-98
Minimizes Yankee gains against Lee and Beauregard, 198-99
Move in Congress to give Davis money for transporting his horses in boxcars, 199-200
Jefferson Davis, Bragg, Lee, Pemberton, Johnston, 200-2
House burning, Maryland, retaliation, 202-3
Supposed Japanese dispatch on barbarian government in Washington, 203-6
Glad that Lincoln has spurned overtures for negotiations, 207-9
Confederates fighting for independence and not slavery, 209-10
Removal of Joseph Johnston, Georgia, 211-12
Proposal for black soldiers, Jefferson Davis, 212-14
Hood's Tennessee campaign, Johnston, 214-16
Confederate has enough resources but may lack will, recommends appointment of Lee as commander in chief, 217
Memoir of John M. Daniel, 218-32